1 EDITORIAL

Dear members,

Hereby the latest edition of our Bulletin, the third of the year. This Bulletin comes to you at a time of great socio-economic and geopolitical uncertainty and major risks, which inevitably call for caution, solidarity and a cool head. Together, we must face major societal challenges, and it will be anything but a walk in the park. Above all, do not panic, as it is already difficult enough as it is...

At the end of 2025, our Association's Board of Directors will reach the end of its three-year term and, according to our Statutes, elections for the formation of a new board will be required. In this edition, you will read all about the start of the elections, in which you will be asked to participate actively or passively. The electoral process is explained in detail. If all goes well, the 2026 active year will start in January under the governance of the newly elected board. The description and procedures relating to these elections are set out in this Bulletin, which serves as the official announcement to all members. This includes the opportunity for anyone to stand as a candidate. In November, once the list of eligible candidates has been drawn up, you will receive your ballot paper by post, as was the case in previous elections.

You will also find a summary of the results of the survey we recently conducted on the practical impact of retirement on the daily lives of pensioners, when settling in a country that is the same as or different from their last place of active service. The survey covered registration formalities, tax implications and adapting to local healthcare. I would like to thank everyone for their many useful contributions, which have enabled us to draw representative conclusions.

In this issue, we also provide information on new developments in the field of health insurance, especially for contributions from the PMO. For residents in Belgium, the new developments concerning the use of MyCareNet will be of interest.

Incidentally, the European Commission's internal communication tool, MyIntraComm, has been deactivated and replaced by the new Digit-Service-Now. You can read more about this in this edition, including how to manage this important transition. This summer, the European Commission's central services teams worked hard to significantly improve the content of this tool, which is far from complete. This innovation is part of a broader (r)evolution in common IT tools, which will also see MyRemote replaced by another system.

Finally, I can confirm that the entire content of this Bulletin is the result of genuine intellectual work by the authors, without any use of artificial intelligence. Thank you for your attention. I hope you enjoy reading this Bulletin.

Yours sincerely,
Pieter Kerstens,

2 INTERVIEW OF JAN WILLEM BRONKHORST

© SEPS-SFPE

To introduce myself : My name is Jan Willem Bronkhorst, born in 1954 on a higher moraine hill from the last ice age in a village called Garderen on the Veluwe, a wooded area in the middle of the Netherlands.

Prior to joining the Commission in 1984, I worked at the Insurance Board (Verzekeringskamer), the supervisory body for insurance and pension funds, where I simultaneously studied to become an actuary. Unfortunately, I could not entirely complete this study due to the physical distance later between Amsterdam and Brussels having a full-time job in the Commission (no technical possibilities for online connections or streaming existed at that time). In my first years at the Commission, based on my mathematical background, my activity was focused on the emerging computerisation combined with statistics in DG Energy and Industry.

Due to the actuarial knowledge and experience in the Insurance Board, I decided to join the pension service in 1990 to prepare transfer agreements and calculate the (virtual) pension reserve of the EU scheme. This requires knowledge of the financial rights in the statute and the method of periodic salary/pension adjustments.

Due to an internal mutation, I became employed in JSIS to provide statistical monitoring and to supervise reporting and controls. After I then returned to the pension service to deal with the fast-growing section of the unemployed after the reform in 2004, and finally to return to again to JSIS in the interest of the service, to deal with technical problems such as the equality coefficient and the coefficient of relatively high health costs in countries outside the EU, in addition to the work from the earlier period.

After a number of years of retirement in 2016, I joined the Governing board of SFPE-SEPS as a mainly technical member in the GTR (technical group on the salary methodology, replacing our previous president Mr. Crutzen), support on practical procedures for statutory and implementing rules matters for SFPE-SEPS members and representative of our association in the course preparation for retirement in various institutions.

3 ELECTIONS OF THE SFPE-SEPS GOVERNING BOARD MEMBERS 2026-2028

Elections for new members of Governing Board will be held shortly (December 2025). To ensure the normal continuity of management, a new Board must be elected by the affiliated members to serve the 2026-2028 term. These statutory elections will take place soon, and the results will be known in December 2025.

In accordance with our Election Rules (<https://sfpe-seps.eu>), members who are up to date with their membership fees and have been members of the Association for at least one year are eligible to stand for election as members of the Board of Directors. Exceptionally, a member may be invited to stand for election to the Board of Directors, provided that the invitation is unanimous among the current Board members. (Art. 3).

On this occasion, anyone among you who wishes to be seriously involved in administrative management is invited to come forward to the Secretariat.

5 JSIS USEFUL INFORMATION

—> NEWS FROM PMO AND DG HR

1. INNOVATION CONCERNING JSIS MEMBERS DEPENDING ON THE BELGIAN HEALTHCARE SYSTEM

The launch of the direct link between the Belgian medical networks and the European Commission's IT tools is of particular interest to JSIS members who reside in Belgium and/or use medical services in Belgium. This development is urgent due to recent changes in Belgian legislation aimed at eliminating monetary payments by patients to providers and improving the corresponding administrative management.

From 15 October 2025, primary members of the JSIS are invited to enter their Belgian national number themselves in MyPMO, or to communicate it to the PMO on paper, which should enable service providers to transmit billing for services directly from the Belgian MyCareNet network to JSIS.

For members, the advantage is that they will no longer have to submit and/or scan the relevant supporting documents. In addition, successive settlement and reimbursement will take place more quickly, thanks to the strengthening of automated processing, which is clearly beneficial to all concerned.

For the time being, nothing will change in terms of payments. JSIS members will continue to pay their bills as before, although the registration of the national number by providers will eliminate paperwork and save money.

Initially, the new solution will be limited to General practitioners and specialists. During 2026, direct communication of invoices via MyCareNet will be gradually extended to dentists, pharmacies, laboratories, and physiotherapists. Finally, hospitals will also join. For the time being, the terms and conditions of coverage remain in force, as they stand.

Please note that the new approach concerns the processing of invoices and does not take the form of third-party payment. You will therefore continue to pay your invoices on site, which also applies to anyone who does not have access to a computer and decides to carry on using paper forms. However, the PMO is able to create a record in MyCareNet for any member who does not use IT, based on the consent form that everyone will receive shortly.

The PMO will contact everyone via a paper distribution attached to the next edition of Info Senior, in which you will find all the useful details about the new approach.

If you have any questions, you can always contact the PMO's one-stop shop: either online at Staff Matters in the Pensioners' Portal, or by calling the single number +32 2 29 11111 (mornings only).

2. INNOVATION CONCERNING RCAM AFFILIATES DEPENDENT ON LUXEMBOURG HEALTHCARE

A recent agreement now simplifies access to hospital care in several Luxembourg establishments for JSIS beneficiaries. This agreement, concluded between the European Commission, the Federation of Luxembourg Hospitals and the Luxembourg State, aims to reduce administrative procedures and introduce a direct billing system in the country's main hospitals.

In practical terms, JSIS members and their dependents can now benefit from direct payment for certain types of care, without having to pay hospital fees up front. To benefit from this, members must generate a specific certificate of cover via MyPMO or RCAM online.

The scheme covers hospitalization, childbirth, and certain major outpatient treatments. However, some services require prior authorization: it is therefore advisable to check in advance whether your procedure is covered.

The PMO will provide everyone with further details, including the exact terms and conditions of the scheme.

If you have any questions, you can always contact the PMO's one-stop shop either online at Staff Matters in the Pensioners' Portal or by calling the dedicated number +32 2 2911111 (mornings only).

The list of hospitals concerned, services covered and steps to follow are available.

3. PERMANENT TERMINATION OF ALL ACCESS TO INFORMATION AVAILABLE VIA MYINTRACOMM

As you have all learned through various means of communication during the summer that just ended, you are aware of the removal of all access via the familiar MyIntraComm tool. In fact, this tool ceased to function on 30 September 2025 and can no longer be accessed.

Until now, you could still view the existing screens, which were, however, no longer being updated. A message to this effect clarified this for you. From now on, you will always have access to the relevant information. To access it online, simply enter the address <https://www.digit.service-now.com/asc> via EU-Login to find all the relevant administrative information, as before. This includes the Pensioners' Portal.

During the summer, DG HR and the PMO worked hard to make the new tool more user-friendly, although we will all have to make an effort to gradually get used to it. Eventually, we will get used to it, just as we did with the now sadly missed MyIntraComm.

6 SURVEY

—> SFPE-SEPS: SURVEY OF MEMBERS – AUGUST 2025 (RE)INTEGRATION INTO A COUNTRY AFTER RETIREMENT

Hereby an initial summary of the results of the survey we recently conducted on the practical impact of retirement on the daily lives of pensioners, when integrating into a country that is the same or different from their last place of active service. Many of you took part, and we would like to thank you all for your numerous useful contributions, which have enabled us to draw representative conclusions. These include several spontaneous comments that have taught us a great deal about what is happening nowadays in the various Member States. Two-thirds of the forms were completed in French, and the other third in English. When assessing the results, a clear distinction must be made between those who have remained mainly resident in Belgium and those who reside elsewhere. The responses provided show that there's a huge divide between these two groups. This isn't totally unexpected, since colleagues who didn't move were able to keep their administrative and medical situations the same, meaning they didn't run into any administrative issues or barriers to care.

© Adobe Stock

Regarding the current administrative situation, two-thirds of respondents indicated that they had not changed their country of residence. Most of those concerned are people living near (or within) the Brussels Region. The remaining third have moved, most of them to another country. Upon retirement, or in the years that followed, 20% changed their place of origin. Less common is a change of nationality, which is nevertheless observed in 7% of cases. Major problems when registering in another country are relatively rare but do occur when people settle in a “third” country that is neither their country of recruitment nor the country of their last assignment. Probably due to the large proportion of Belgian residents who responded, it appears that half of the participants already have an electronic identity, such as an E-ID.

In the total population, 30% currently have a functioning E-ID. The rest will follow in the coming years, although the delay seems significant to us. Virtually everyone has had to change their original driver's license, including those residing in Belgium (except Belgians by birth), which seems to be a mandatory step for all colleagues when changing their country of residence. Unlike identity documents, national monitoring of driver's license updates is much more rigorous, sometimes under pressure from car insurance companies.

In 12% of cases, national authorities confiscated one or more personal documents, often replacing them with others. However, this always seems to be resolved satisfactorily.

Tax identities are identical in Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy, while in other countries the tax number does not necessarily correspond to the national number: 10% of respondents indicated that they did not have a national number.

In the area of health, we were somewhat surprised to find that 30% of respondents did not have any accident insurance. Retirement puts an end to the protection offered by the employer, which does not seem to be widely known. Specific action on this issue seems to be necessary.

At least 15% of colleagues have already been refused treatment by hospitals or other providers and have been forced to pay out of pocket before being able to claim reimbursement from the JSIS. This percentage includes residents of the Brussels Region. One-fifth of participants indicated that they had to ask for direct billing.

Fifteen per cent of colleagues indicate that they are affiliated with a national health insurance fund, which in some countries is even compulsory and unavoidable. For others, national affiliation is possible through their spouse or through a right to a national survivor's pension. Many of them never claim anything from the JSIS. If the obligation to be affiliated with the JSIS were to end, they would opt out.

The issue of the JSIS's lack of international recognition has proved to be a major concern for colleagues. Two-thirds of the personal comments included in the survey forms relate to this issue. For us, the urgency of this recognition must be reinforced and translated into concrete action. The CZ solutions in the Netherlands and MyCareNet are certainly good steps forward, but a comprehensive solution for the whole of the EU needs to be proposed as soon as possible, which is becoming even more urgent given developments in information technology.

Among colleagues who have changed their country of residence, around 10% have had direct social security taxes imposed on them. Fifteen per cent are required to pay higher taxes that consider the amount of their EU pension. Both situations are explicitly prohibited by Protocol No 7 to the Treaties of the European Union, but this does not seem to be widely known or properly respected. It is now up to the European Commission to better protect its flock.

No less than 30% of participants confirmed that their country's tax authorities had requested disclosure of the annual amount of their EU pension, which is, in all cases, illegal. Colleagues are aware of this and automatically reply "0". A great part of respondents transferred their pension rights when they were recruited and are not/no longer effective subject to national taxation. An unknown number do not seem to be aware of their rights to the first pillar of a national pension scheme, in proportion to the years and or stay or contribution to the national system before joining the EU.

→ IS THE EUROPEAN UNION EXPOSING ITSELF TO HISTORICAL RISKS THROUGH EXCESSIVE ZEAL?

The current geopolitical context is putting the smooth functioning and credibility of the Union's institutions to the test. It is therefore incumbent upon us to remain CALM, keep a cool head, and not lose hope in a positive and just outcome to the current situation.

© European Communities 1958

Since Robert Schuman's memorable speech on 9 May 1950, we have all considered that the European Union was, and still is, the best guarantee for maintaining lasting peace and creating prosperity on our beloved continent. This is also enshrined in Article 3 of the Treaty establishing the European Union. For almost 75 years, this has worked well, at least in the western part of the Union...

Most of us, now deserving pensioners, joined the institutions between 25 and 40 years ago. Being a civil servant or official of the Union was not just taking on a job, but almost a vocation, aiming to loyally serve the cause of Europe for the rest of one's life. Those who joined the institutions did so to end their active professional lives in a meaningful way.

We have witnessed: the reconciliation of sworn enemies Germany and France, the launch of the common agricultural policy, the Customs Union, the Single Market, consumer protection, the Schengen Area, the single currency, external relations, and the happy reunification of a Europe divided by the Cold War. Great things, once too often thought impossible, have been achieved.

The idea behind our institutions was also to provide a model of good and diligent administration for all Member States to follow. This clearly includes compliance with democratically established rules and the implementing provisions in force. In short, the perfect embodiment of the rule of law on the ground. To quote Manuel Barroso: 'Almost the best administration in the world' ...

The current Presidents of the European Commission and the European Parliament constantly and rightly stress the importance of defending the values and principles that underpin the existence and functioning of our institutions. They are right, because without this, the Union would lose its raison d'être in the world.

It must be noted that, little by little, a fundamental divergence has emerged between respect for these principles, on the one hand, and the current policy pursued by senior leaders, on the other. This is very worrying, not only because of what may result from it, but also for the good reputation and credibility (both internally and externally) of the Union as a whole.

For reasons that are partly understandable, the current European Commission is showing an unmistakable tendency to want to extend its established powers beyond the limits stipulated in the Treaties. This seems to have been significantly reinforced over the last five years. Sometimes for good, sometimes for bad. A certain disarray seems to have gathered pace since the pandemic. This does not yet seem to have abated, while calling into question all the achievements of the past.

The aftermath of the excesses surrounding the generous purchase of Covid-19 vaccines has not been erased. The President of the European Commission seems unable to shake off the turmoil surrounding the apparent lack of full compliance with the rules applicable to procurement at the time of the initial purchase. This remains a daily threat. The priority should have been the coordination of health measures, which, unfortunately, was lacking.

The repeated rejection of the strong recommendations issued by the European Court of Auditors, including the refusal to grant discharge for sound budgetary and financial management, would not have gone unnoticed and without political consequences during the previous 70 years. We are thus witnessing a colossal shift.

The creation of DG DEFIS is not seen as a simple instrument for managing the markets for military defense products, but as the authentic nucleus of a fully-fledged European Union Ministry of War. This is unprecedented.

However, Article 4 of the Treaty establishing the European Union explicitly excludes the involvement of the institutions in matters of defense and territorial security, which are at the discretion of the Member States. To this end, these states have joined together in NATO to collaborate with the United States and Canada. Since 2024, Finland and Sweden have joined this pact, and discussions are underway in Austria to follow suit.

On 18 August, the President of the United States received the main leaders of the European Union to discuss collaboration on the conflict in Ukraine. Among the guests was the President of the European Commission. Many wondered what she was doing there. Frankly, it is not her administrative role.

Foreign military policy is, in fact, the responsibility of the Council of Ministers of the European Union (and not the Commission), and the Union should have been represented by the permanent President of the Council, Mr. Costa, and/or by the head of government holding the rotating presidency of the Council. Both were strangely absent.

The European Commission is undoubtedly competent to discuss external trade policy. Its interventions in the debates with the United States on customs tariffs, on the agreement with Mercosur, and on the preparation of fruitful cooperation with Indonesia are therefore entirely appropriate.

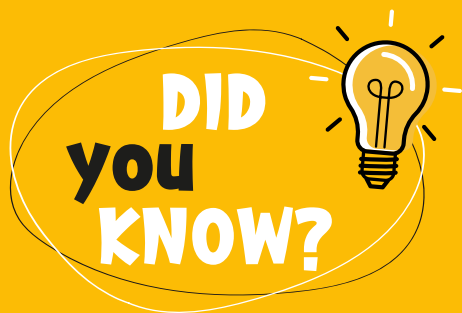

On the other hand, the European Union's spontaneous involvement in the defense of the territory seems, for the moment, a bridge too far. This creative management of established limits seems to undermine any legitimate attempt to gradually extend future discretionary powers to new areas, while ensuring a broad consensus among all sovereign people.

For this reason, it is incumbent upon the European Commission not to overstep the limits of its powers and to avoid any excessive behaviour that could justify a potential aggressor unexpectedly coming to "liquidate the business".

8 DID YOU KNOW?

→ What is screening?
Why and for whom?

Be aware that screening is important and should not be neglected. You are entitled to it under the conditions set out for women and men.

1. WHAT IS HEALTH SCREENING?

Health screening is a voluntary set of medical tests designed for the early detection of possible disease-related anomalies.

- It is a preventive tool, not a diagnostic or treatment substitute.
- Results are preliminary and may lead to appropriate follow-up care.

- Open to JSIS members over 18, whether primary or complementary beneficiaries.
- Members are responsible for the consequences of tests and any disputes with clinics.
- Screening programmes are different from the annual medical check-up provided by the Medical Service for active staff.

2. SCREENING PROGRAMMES

Screening is organised by gender and age. Each programme includes standard tests (mandatory) and may be supplemented by optional tests.

For women

- 18–44 years: Programme 1 (every 5 years) + GYN 1 (every 2 years).
- 45–59 years: Programme 2 (every 4 years) + GYN 2 (every 2 years).
- 60+ years: Programme 3 (every 2 years).

For men

- 18–44 years: Programme 4 (every 5 years).
- 45–59 years: Programme 5 (every 4 years).
- 60+ years: Programme 6 (every 2 years).

3. PRACTICAL DETAILS

- There are two options for screening:
 - At a centre approved by the RCAM:
 - No charge for the standard programme.
 - Free additions if the
- At a non-approved centre or with a doctor of their choice:
 - The member pays for the examinations.
 - Possibility of requesting reimbursement from the RCAM
- Possibility of requesting reimbursement from the RCAM.

Please note that you are not obliged to participate in the entire programme; you can also visit your own doctor for some of these services.

4. REIMBURSEMENT

Screening programs are reimbursed at 100% up to the maximum limits, with the excess threshold set as follows:

- In European Union countries where there are no approved centres, the excess threshold is the Belgian threshold multiplied by the country's equality coefficient + 50%.
- In countries where we have approved centres, the excess threshold is the most expensive price of the standard programs negotiated (all providers combined) or the most expensive negotiated cost for individual examinations.
- In countries outside the European Union, the ceiling corresponds to that applied in Belgium.

In some cases, the costs incurred may not be reimbursed in full.

The reimbursement form is available online on MyPMO at the following web address.

9 CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

Dear colleagues,

We still need volunteers but currently this voluntary work will focus on helping colleagues who have problems with:

- Contact with PMO
- Filling in documents
- Etc.

This is because we would like to be able to offer more personalised assistance to retired colleagues who need help, and we would like to organise half-day presences in order to satisfy a maximum number of colleagues in difficulties.

Please help us to help them...

That means we are interested in other forms of assistance.

Let us know about your interests and assets for all good. SFPE - SEPS certainly needs you in:

- IT field;
- Presentations of the Association, IT tools, etc...
- Translations into English, Italian, German and even French;
- Secretarial support;

Whatever task you can help with, you'll be doing it for the good of all.

Thank you in advance for joining us, whether you are in Brussels or elsewhere, as the SFPE-SEPS applies the rules of teleworking.
